KTA/39/1/44	4 December 1990 - 16 February 1991	Bit of wire	burned, exposed wire from the Cinderella Panto with Stanley Baxter. During the show, there was a gag where the evil stepsisters would try to electrocute Cinderella by having her plug in curlers with a faulty wire. The joke was it would never hurt Cinderella but always electrocuted the step sisters, one played by Stanley Baxter, and backstage Moira McInnes was working to create this effect by turning on and off a switch and igniting a strobe light effect. One night, when the step sisters went to plug in the curlers, unbeknownst to Moira, a wire had burst, and she got a shock and was being electrocuted. Members of the audience and those on stage had no idea what was happening. Stanley Baxter picked up on it, and managed to go to the side of the stage to push Moira to the side to stop the shock. This wire is a memento of the gag gone wrong in one of the most iconic shows at the King's.	found in confectionery cupboard
